Exterra Resources opens gold production window for later in 2017

Exterra Resources (ASX:EXC) has revealed a Feasibility Study that concludes that the Second Fortune Gold Mine is financially and technically viable.

The study is based on developing a mine below the existing open pit and generating a sorted concentrate for toll treating.

This delivers the potential for gold production as soon as the end of 2017.

Some of the key metrics are impressive, including: Forecast LOM free cash-flow of $25 million before financing costs; and an Internal Rate of Return of 133%.

The all-in sustaining cost is forecast at A$1176 an ounce, well above the current Australian Denominated gold price of circa A$1655 an ounce.

The mine benefits from access to infrastructure, as its located 220 kilometres from Kalgoorlie in Western Australia.

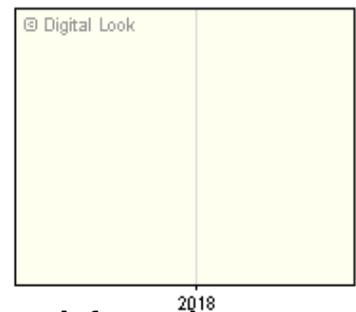

John Davis, executive chairman, commented: "The completion of the Feasibility Study is a major milestone in the development of the Second Fortune mining operation.

"We are very pleased to confirm the robust economics of the Second Fortune project and look forward to securing financing and commencing the mining activities."

- Initial mine life of 2 years, with significant resource potential at depth on the Main Lode and on the subsidiary Hanging wall, Footwall and West Lodes;
- Estimated funding requirement of $9.4m ($7.2 capital and $2.2m working capital) An additional $3m working capital contingency will be provisioned to mitigate operational risk;
- Estimated LOM C1 cash cost of $989/oz and all-in sustaining cost (AISC) of $1,176/oz;
- Exploration programmes at the Linden Gold Project area continuing, aimed at expanding the current 131koz resource; and
- Sorting will de-risk future and underground mining at Second Fortune by rejecting waste dilution prior to haulage and processing, reducing one of the major risks in narrow vein mining.
