Wangle Technologies launches GPS based alert feature to help kids stay safe

Wangle Technologies Ltd (ASX:WGL) has launched the GPS Gating feature for its family protection software, allowing parents to set an alert that activates when a child's device moves outside of a 20-metre radius from the chosen location.

The company's Wangle Family Insites (WFI) software suite has been designed to analyse children's internet access and also send parents notifications in real time to help manage cyber threats.

The new GPS gating feature is available for both iOS and Android versions of the WFI app.

Importantly, the feature update completes Wangle's short term development goals for WFI for 2017 in readiness for aggressive client acquisition marketing activities.

Wangle's shares were last trading circa 7% higher intra-day, at $0.015.

Earlier this week, Wangle received firm commitments to raise $1.4 million via a share placement at $0.014 each.

The funds will enable the company to invest in brand development and customer acquisition strategies.

Wangle is already seeing traction, with WFI achieving the number one position in the parenting category of the Google Play store.
