READ: Peninsula Energy feasibility study results confirm new low-cost uranium operation

Peninsula recently received the results of a feasibility study supporting the transformation to a cost-effective low-pH ISR uranium operation at its Lance Projects in Wyoming, US.

The study showed that Peninsula would become a globally competitive uranium producer by switching its uranium production method to low-pH ISR.

It estimated direct operating expenses over the 17-year life-of-mine (LoM) of US$15.59 per pound and LoM all-in sustaining costs averaging US$31.77 per pound.
