The company recently progressed the commercialisation of its HPA product through a follow-up marketing trip to HPA consumers in Asia.

Meetings were held with industry participants in China, Japan and South Korea and FYI confirmed its Cadoux HPA aligns with a market supported by a premium price and strong demand for new supply sources.

FYI's strategy is to mine and beneficiate kaolin on-site at its Cadoux project in Western Australia and transport the beneficiated aluminous clay to Kwinana for refining, before being exported to expanding tech and battery-related markets.
