NTM Gold resumes drilling at Redcliffe project targeting several gold prospects

NTM Gold Ltd (ASX:NTM) has resumed aircore drilling at its Redcliffe Gold Project near Leonora in WA following successful 2018 aircore work that returned plus 1 g/t gold intersections.

This latest aircore campaign will comprise about 8,000 metres of drilling across the project including at the Hub North, Nambi North, Infinity and Aliso prospects.

The bulk of the drilling will focus on an 800-metre gap to the north of the recent Hub discovery, which has never been drilled.

It will also follow up previous intersections at Infinity and Aliso as well as testing structural targets at Nambi North.

NTM Gold managing director Andrew Muir said: "Our aggressive exploration program of Redcliffe continues with the resumption of aircore drilling to target new deposits.

"This program is in parallel to our diamond and reverse circulation drill campaigns that are aimed at expanding existing deposits and drilling out recent discoveries.

"The ongoing drilling should result in regular exploration results news flow over the next few months as NTM continues to deliver value for shareholders."
