Hemogenyx Pharmaceuticals to revolutionise bone marrow transplants

Dr Vladislav Sandler, chief executive of HemoGenyx Pharmaceuticals Plc (LON:HEMO), tells Proactive the biotech start up is focused on bringing to market products that could change the way bone marrow transplants are carried out.

"We're trying to develop new types of antibodies that will get rid of the need for chemotherapy and radiation".

"These antibodies will prepare the patient in a much safer and targeted way ... reducing side effects and increasing the success rate of the transplantation".

The company came about through a merger deal with Silver Falcon, a London-based shell company.
