S&P/ASX 200 sinks to three-month low with heavy losses for miners and banks

S&P/ASX 200 (INDEXASX:XJO) is sliding for a fourth consecutive session, down 47 points or 0.81% to 5,775 by 12.38 pm following further declines on Wall Street overnight.

Westpac Banking Corp (ASX:WBC) slipped 2.2% and National Australia Bank Ltd (ASX:NAB) fell 2.46% to weigh heavily on the financials.

Weak global cues

The US and European markets are easing as the rising number of COVID-19 infections threaten to force renewed lockdowns of major economies.

US coronavirus deaths are close to the 200,000-mark.

In a blow to banking stocks, news reports alleged that many of the world's most powerful banks looked the other way for years when dealing with suspected money launderers and other shady customers.

Commodity prices fall

Commodity prices retreated with stocks, stung by the weakening recovery in fuel demand due to COVID-19 concerns.

Iron ore price dropped 4.2%, weighing down major minors BHP Group (ASX:BHP) (-2.14%), Rio Tinto (ASX:RIO) (-3.17%) and Fortescue Metals (ASX:FMG) (-3.33%).

Global oil prices fell at least 4% overnight on demand concerns while also being hampered by the strengthening US dollar.

Santos (ASX:STO) and Oil Search (ASX:OSH) were down 3.26% and 2.12% respectively.

Top gainers

Today's top gainers on the ASX include Engage:BDR Ltd (ASX:EN1) (+20.00%), Eclipse Metals Ltd (ASX:EPM) (+14.29%), PNX Metals Ltd (ASX:PNX) (+10.00%) and Latin Resources Ltd (ASX:LRS) (+10.00%).
