Anson Resources CEO details potentially large layered intrusive complex at its Bull project

Anson Resources Ltd's (ASX:ASN) Bruce Richardson tells Proactive's Andrew Scott they've identified a potentially large layered intrusive complex at their Bull project which is 7,000 metres in length and extends into the tenement they recently pegged. He says if proven up it would increase the Ni-Cu- PGE prospective area to 19.8 square kilometres. Anson is now planning a low-cost exploration program to test the interpreted target which will include drone magnetic and ground gravity surveys, geological mapping and rock chip sampling.
